

How Jeff. Davis Received the News of the President's Murder.

HIS REMARKS ON THE OCCASION.

He Thinks Andy Johnson and Sec'y Stanton should have been Assassinated.

A Complimentary Allusion to the President

Damaging Testimony Concerning Spangler.

CONFEDERATE OFFICERS ON THE STAND

AN AFFECTING SCENE

Testimony of Mrs. Surratt's Daughter.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

The proceedings in the conspirators' trial today were more interesting than important. The crowd was greater than ever before.

Among the witnesses were Major Gen. Johnson of the Rebel army, and a brother and daughter of Mrs. Surratt. Miss Surratt was dressed in deep mourning, like her mother, and was quite handsomely and had an air of insistent dignity at first, but gradually softened beneath the Judge-Advocate's cross-examination, until, on going from the stand, she cried out with much feeling, searching every part of the room, "Where is she—where is my mother?" Mrs. Surratt kept her head down, and the daughter only caught a glimpse of her on passing out. She is a young lady of perhaps twenty and has a weary, anxious look. On entering and leaving the courtroom she carefully kept her skirts from touching the Yankee officers.

The testimony for the defense, except in the case of Dr. Mudd, seems to be very weak.

The counsel for the accused appear to submit all their evidence this week, that the summing up on the part of the Government may commence next Monday.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 30, 1865.

Visitors of both sexes continue to crowd the Court room almost to suffocation.

John B. Hubbard, John E. Roberts and Charles E. Fellows, of Cal. Bledsoe's desire to force, are in attendance, enforcing order and courteously attending to their appropriate duties.

The record of the previous day having been read, the prosecution proceeded to call three witnesses, the remaining being for the defense. Their testimony was as follows:

EXAMINATION OF LEWIS F. BATES.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State where you reside?

A. In Charlotte, N. C.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. A little over four years.

Q. In what business have you been engaged during the past year? A. I have been engaged as Superintendent of the Southern Express Company for the State of North Carolina.

Q. State whether or not you saw Jefferson Davis recently at Charlotte? A. I did not see him.

Q. Did he make an address to the people on that occasion? A. He did not.

Q. State whether or not in the course of that address, or toward the close, a telegram was received by him announcing the assassination of the President of the United States? A. It was.

Q. From whom? A. From John C. Breckinridge.

Q. Did he or did he not read that telegram to the crowd? A. He did.

Q. Look at that (exhibiting to witness a telegram). State whether it is the same dispatch? A. I should say that it was.

(The dispatch was then read as follows):

His Excellency President Lincoln was assassinated in the theater, in Washington, on the night of the 14th inst. Seward's house was entered on the same night and he was repeatedly stabbed and killed.

Q. State what Jefferson Davis said after reading this dispatch to the crowd, and endeavor to recollect his precise language? A. Upon the conclusion of the speech to the people he read this dispatch aloud, and made this remark: "If it were to be done, it were better that it were done now."

Q. You are sure those are the words? A. Those are the words.

Q. State whether or not, in a day or two afterward, Jeff. Davis, John C. Breckinridge and others were present at your house in Charlotte? A. They were.

Q. And the assassination of the President was the subject of conversation? A. A day or two afterward that was the subject of their conversation.

Q. Can you remember what John C. Breckinridge said? A. He said that he regretted it very much that it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time; Davis replied: "Will, General, I don't know if it were better or not, but I am sure it was well done; and if the same were done to Andy Johnson, the bast, and Secretary Stanton, the job would then be complete."

Q. You feel confident that you recollect his words? A. Those are the words used.

Q. State whether or not the regret which John C. Breckinridge expressed at the assassination was because of the criminality, or simply because it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time? A. I drew that conclusion.

Q. Was there any remark made as to the criminality of the act? A. No, sir; he simply remarked that he regretted it as being unfortunate for the South.

Q. Of what State are you a native? A. Of Massachusetts.

EXAMINATION OF J. C. COBBY.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. At Charlotte, N. C.

Q. In what business were you engaged there? A. In telegraph business, in connection with the Southern Express Company.

Q. Look at the telegraph dispatch of which Mr. Bates has just spoken, and state whether or not it passed over the wires at the date indicated? A. Yes, sir; that is a true copy of the message telegraphed on the 19th of April last to Jefferson Davis.

Q. From what point? A. From Greenboro, and signed by John C. Breckinridge.

Q. This dispatch was sent from the office to Jefferson Davis at Charlotte? A. When the message was received he was en route to Charlotte. It was delivered to him at Mr. Bates's house in Charlotte.

Q. From that point, when stated that (inasmuch as the counsel for the defense, he desired to call another witness for the prosecution in regard to that prisoner. No objection being made the following witness was called:

EXAMINATION OF JACOB RUTHERFORD.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State whether you were a carpenter at Ford's Theater down to the 14th of April last? A. I was.

Q. Were you present on the night of the 14th when the President was shot? A. I was.

Q. Which box in the theater did the President occupy that night? A. It was on the left hand side of the stage—the right hand side as you come in from the front.

Q. When the shot was fired did you hear anybody cry stop that man? A. I did.

Q. State where you were and what you did when you heard the cry stop that man? A. I was standing on the stage, about the center, behind the scenes, when somebody cried out the President in shot; then I saw a man running across the stage toward the back door; he had a knife in his hand; I ran to the east entrance, and as I came up to him he grabbed for me, and struck me with his knife; I jumped back, he then ran out and slammed the door shut; then I went to open the door, and found it was fast; could not get it open very readily; at that time somebody cried out "which way," and I answered "that way," then I got out, but the

How Jeff. Davis Received the News of the President's Murder.

HIS REMARKS ON THE OCCASION.

He Thinks Andy Johnson and Sec'y Stanton should have been Assassinated.

A Complimentary Allusion to the President

Damaging Testimony Concerning Spangler.

CONFEDERATE OFFICERS ON THE STAND

AN AFFECTING SCENE

Testimony of Mrs. Surratt's Daughter.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

The proceedings in the conspirators' trial today were more interesting than important. The crowd was greater than ever before.

Among the witnesses were Major Gen. Johnson of the Rebel army, and a brother and daughter of Mrs. Surratt. Miss Surratt was dressed in deep mourning, like her mother, and was quite handsomely and had an air of insistent dignity at first, but gradually softened beneath the Judge-Advocate's cross-examination, until, on going from the stand, she cried out with much feeling, searching every part of the room, "Where is she—where is my mother?" Mrs. Surratt kept her head down, and the daughter only caught a glimpse of her on passing out. She is a young lady of perhaps twenty and has a weary, anxious look. On entering and leaving the courtroom she carefully kept her skirts from touching the Yankee officers.

The testimony for the defense, except in the case of Dr. Mudd, seems to be very weak.

The counsel for the accused appear to submit all their evidence this week, that the summing up on the part of the Government may commence next Monday.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 30, 1865.

Visitors of both sexes continue to crowd the Court room almost to suffocation.

John B. Hubbard, John E. Roberts and Charles E. Fellows, of Cal. Bledsoe's desire to force, are in attendance, enforcing order and courteously attending to their appropriate duties.

The record of the previous day having been read, the prosecution proceeded to call three witnesses, the remaining being for the defense. Their testimony was as follows:

EXAMINATION OF LEWIS F. BATES.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State where you reside?

A. In Charlotte, N. C.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. A little over four years.

Q. In what business have you been engaged during the past year? A. I have been engaged as Superintendent of the Southern Express Company for the State of North Carolina.

Q. State whether or not you saw Jefferson Davis recently at Charlotte? A. I did not see him.

Q. Did he make an address to the people on that occasion? A. He did not.

Q. State whether or not in the course of that address, or toward the close, a telegram was received by him announcing the assassination of the President of the United States? A. It was.

Q. From whom? A. From John C. Breckinridge.

Q. Did he or did he not read that telegram to the crowd? A. He did.

Q. Look at that (exhibiting to witness a telegram). State whether it is the same dispatch? A. I should say that it was.

(The dispatch was then read as follows):

His Excellency President Lincoln was assassinated in the theater, in Washington, on the night of the 14th inst. Seward's house was entered on the same night and he was repeatedly stabbed and killed.

Q. State what Jefferson Davis said after reading this dispatch to the crowd, and endeavor to recollect his precise language? A. Upon the conclusion of the speech to the people he read this dispatch aloud, and made this remark: "If it were to be done, it were better that it were done now."

Q. You are sure those are the words? A. Those are the words.

Q. State whether or not, in a day or two afterward, Jeff. Davis, John C. Breckinridge and others were present at your house in Charlotte? A. They were.

Q. And the assassination of the President was the subject of conversation? A. A day or two afterward that was the subject of their conversation.

Q. Can you remember what John C. Breckinridge said? A. He said that he regretted it very much that it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time; Davis replied: "Will, General, I don't know if it were better or not, but I am sure it was well done; and if the same were done to Andy Johnson, the bast, and Secretary Stanton, the job would then be complete."

Q. You feel confident that you recollect his words? A. Those are the words used.

Q. State whether or not the regret which John C. Breckinridge expressed at the assassination was because of the criminality, or simply because it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time? A. I drew that conclusion.

Q. Was there any remark made as to the criminality of the act? A. No, sir; he simply remarked that he regretted it as being unfortunate for the South.

Q. Of what State are you a native? A. Of Massachusetts.

EXAMINATION OF J. C. COBBY.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. At Charlotte, N. C.

Q. In what business were you engaged there? A. In telegraph business, in connection with the Southern Express Company.

Q. Look at the telegraph dispatch of which Mr. Bates has just spoken, and state whether or not it passed over the wires at the date indicated? A. Yes, sir; that is a true copy of the message telegraphed on the 19th of April last to Jefferson Davis.

Q. From what point? A. From Greenboro, and signed by John C. Breckinridge.

Q. This dispatch was sent from the office to Jefferson Davis at Charlotte? A. When the message was received he was en route to Charlotte. It was delivered to him at Mr. Bates's house in Charlotte.

Q. From that point, when stated that (inasmuch as the counsel for the defense, he desired to call another witness for the prosecution in regard to that prisoner. No objection being made the following witness was called:

EXAMINATION OF JACOB RUTHERFORD.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State whether you were a carpenter at Ford's Theater down to the 14th of April last? A. I was.

Q. Were you present on the night of the 14th when the President was shot? A. I was.

Q. Which box in the theater did the President occupy that night? A. It was on the left hand side of the stage—the right hand side as you come in from the front.

Q. When the shot was fired did you hear anybody cry stop that man? A. I did.

Q. State where you were and what you did when you heard the cry stop that man? A. I was standing on the stage, about the center, behind the scenes, when somebody cried out the President in shot; then I saw a man running across the stage toward the back door; he had a knife in his hand; I ran to the east entrance, and as I came up to him he grabbed for me, and struck me with his knife; I jumped back, he then ran out and slammed the door shut; then I went to open the door, and found it was fast; could not get it open very readily; at that time somebody cried out "which way," and I answered "that way," then I got out, but the

How Jeff. Davis Received the News of the President's Murder.

HIS REMARKS ON THE OCCASION.

He Thinks Andy Johnson and Sec'y Stanton should have been Assassinated.

A Complimentary Allusion to the President

Damaging Testimony Concerning Spangler.

CONFEDERATE OFFICERS ON THE STAND

AN AFFECTING SCENE

Testimony of Mrs. Surratt's Daughter.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

The proceedings in the conspirators' trial today were more interesting than important. The crowd was greater than ever before.

Among the witnesses were Major Gen. Johnson of the Rebel army, and a brother and daughter of Mrs. Surratt. Miss Surratt was dressed in deep mourning, like her mother, and was quite handsomely and had an air of insistent dignity at first, but gradually softened beneath the Judge-Advocate's cross-examination, until, on going from the stand, she cried out with much feeling, searching every part of the room, "Where is she—where is my mother?" Mrs. Surratt kept her head down, and the daughter only caught a glimpse of her on passing out. She is a young lady of perhaps twenty and has a weary, anxious look. On entering and leaving the courtroom she carefully kept her skirts from touching the Yankee officers.

The testimony for the defense, except in the case of Dr. Mudd, seems to be very weak.

The counsel for the accused appear to submit all their evidence this week, that the summing up on the part of the Government may commence next Monday.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 30, 1865.

Visitors of both sexes continue to crowd the Court room almost to suffocation.

John B. Hubbard, John E. Roberts and Charles E. Fellows, of Cal. Bledsoe's desire to force, are in attendance, enforcing order and courteously attending to their appropriate duties.

The record of the previous day having been read, the prosecution proceeded to call three witnesses, the remaining being for the defense. Their testimony was as follows:

EXAMINATION OF LEWIS F. BATES.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State where you reside?

A. In Charlotte, N. C.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. A little over four years.

Q. In what business have you been engaged during the past year? A. I have been engaged as Superintendent of the Southern Express Company for the State of North Carolina.

Q. State whether or not you saw Jefferson Davis recently at Charlotte? A. I did not see him.

Q. Did he make an address to the people on that occasion? A. He did not.

Q. State whether or not in the course of that address, or toward the close, a telegram was received by him announcing the assassination of the President of the United States? A. It was.

Q. From whom? A. From John C. Breckinridge.

Q. Did he or did he not read that telegram to the crowd? A. He did.

Q. Look at that (exhibiting to witness a telegram). State whether it is the same dispatch? A. I should say that it was.

(The dispatch was then read as follows):

His Excellency President Lincoln was assassinated in the theater, in Washington, on the night of the 14th inst. Seward's house was entered on the same night and he was repeatedly stabbed and killed.

Q. State what Jefferson Davis said after reading this dispatch to the crowd, and endeavor to recollect his precise language? A. Upon the conclusion of the speech to the people he read this dispatch aloud, and made this remark: "If it were to be done, it were better that it were done now."

Q. You are sure those are the words? A. Those are the words.

Q. State whether or not, in a day or two afterward, Jeff. Davis, John C. Breckinridge and others were present at your house in Charlotte? A. They were.

Q. And the assassination of the President was the subject of conversation? A. A day or two afterward that was the subject of their conversation.

Q. Can you remember what John C. Breckinridge said? A. He said that he regretted it very much that it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time; Davis replied: "Will, General, I don't know if it were better or not, but I am sure it was well done; and if the same were done to Andy Johnson, the bast, and Secretary Stanton, the job would then be complete."

Q. You feel confident that you recollect his words? A. Those are the words used.

Q. State whether or not the regret which John C. Breckinridge expressed at the assassination was because of the criminality, or simply because it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time? A. I drew that conclusion.

Q. Was there any remark made as to the criminality of the act? A. No, sir; he simply remarked that he regretted it as being unfortunate for the South.

Q. Of what State are you a native? A. Of Massachusetts.

EXAMINATION OF J. C. COBBY.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. At Charlotte, N. C.

Q. In what business were you engaged there? A. In telegraph business, in connection with the Southern Express Company.

Q. Look at the telegraph dispatch of which Mr. Bates has just spoken, and state whether or not it passed over the wires at the date indicated? A. Yes, sir; that is a true copy of the message telegraphed on the 19th of April last to Jefferson Davis.

Q. From what point? A. From Greenboro, and signed by John C. Breckinridge.

Q. This dispatch was sent from the office to Jefferson Davis at Charlotte? A. When the message was received he was en route to Charlotte. It was delivered to him at Mr. Bates's house in Charlotte.

Q. From that point, when stated that (inasmuch as the counsel for the defense, he desired to call another witness for the prosecution in regard to that prisoner. No objection being made the following witness was called:

EXAMINATION OF JACOB RUTHERFORD.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State whether you were a carpenter at Ford's Theater down to the 14th of April last? A. I was.

Q. Were you present on the night of the 14th when the President was shot? A. I was.

Q. Which box in the theater did the President occupy that night? A. It was on the left hand side of the stage—the right hand side as you come in from the front.

Q. When the shot was fired did you hear anybody cry stop that man? A. I did.

Q. State where you were and what you did when you heard the cry stop that man? A. I was standing on the stage, about the center, behind the scenes, when somebody cried out the President in shot; then I saw a man running across the stage toward the back door; he had a knife in his hand; I ran to the east entrance, and as I came up to him he grabbed for me, and struck me with his knife; I jumped back, he then ran out and slammed the door shut; then I went to open the door, and found it was fast; could not get it open very readily; at that time somebody cried out "which way," and I answered "that way," then I got out, but the

How Jeff. Davis Received the News of the President's Murder.

HIS REMARKS ON THE OCCASION.

He Thinks Andy Johnson and Sec'y Stanton should have been Assassinated.

A Complimentary Allusion to the President

Damaging Testimony Concerning Spangler.

CONFEDERATE OFFICERS ON THE STAND

AN AFFECTING SCENE

Testimony of Mrs. Surratt's Daughter.

Special Dispatch to The N. Y. Tribune.

The proceedings in the conspirators' trial today were more interesting than important. The crowd was greater than ever before.

Among the witnesses were Major Gen. Johnson of the Rebel army, and a brother and daughter of Mrs. Surratt. Miss Surratt was dressed in deep mourning, like her mother, and was quite handsomely and had an air of insistent dignity at first, but gradually softened beneath the Judge-Advocate's cross-examination, until, on going from the stand, she cried out with much feeling, searching every part of the room, "Where is she—where is my mother?" Mrs. Surratt kept her head down, and the daughter only caught a glimpse of her on passing out. She is a young lady of perhaps twenty and has a weary, anxious look. On entering and leaving the courtroom she carefully kept her skirts from touching the Yankee officers.

The testimony for the defense, except in the case of Dr. Mudd, seems to be very weak.

The counsel for the accused appear to submit all their evidence this week, that the summing up on the part of the Government may commence next Monday.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, May 30, 1865.

Visitors of both sexes continue to crowd the Court room almost to suffocation.

John B. Hubbard, John E. Roberts and Charles E. Fellows, of Cal. Bledsoe's desire to force, are in attendance, enforcing order and courteously attending to their appropriate duties.

The record of the previous day having been read, the prosecution proceeded to call three witnesses, the remaining being for the defense. Their testimony was as follows:

EXAMINATION OF LEWIS F. BATES.

By Judge Advocate Bingham—Q. State where you reside?

A. In Charlotte, N. C.

Q. How long have you resided there? A. A little over four years.

Q. In what business have you been engaged during the past year? A. I have been engaged as Superintendent of the Southern Express Company for the State of North Carolina.

Q. State whether or not you saw Jefferson Davis recently at Charlotte? A. I did not see him.

Q. Did he make an address to the people on that occasion? A. He did not.

Q. State whether or not in the course of that address, or toward the close, a telegram was received by him announcing the assassination of the President of the United States? A. It was.

Q. From whom? A. From John C. Breckinridge.

Q. Did he or did he not read that telegram to the crowd? A. He did.

Q. Look at that (exhibiting to witness a telegram). State whether it is the same dispatch? A. I should say that it was.

(The dispatch was then read as follows):

His Excellency President Lincoln was assassinated in the theater, in Washington, on the night of the 14th inst. Seward's house was entered on the same night and he was repeatedly stabbed and killed.

Q. State what Jefferson Davis said after reading this dispatch to the crowd, and endeavor to recollect his precise language? A. Upon the conclusion of the speech to the people he read this dispatch aloud, and made this remark: "If it were to be done, it were better that it were done now."

Q. You are sure those are the words? A. Those are the words.

Q. State whether or not, in a day or two afterward, Jeff. Davis, John C. Breckinridge and others were present at your house in Charlotte? A. They were.

Q. And the assassination of the President was the subject of conversation? A. A day or two afterward that was the subject of their conversation.

Q. Can you remember what John C. Breckinridge said? A. He said that he regretted it very much that it was unfortunate for the people of the South at that time; Davis replied: "Will, General, I don't know if it were better or not, but I am sure it was well done; and if the same were done to Andy Johnson, the bast, and Secretary Stanton, the job would then be complete."

Q. You feel confident that you recollect his words? A. Those are the